

WELCOME TO OUR NEW HSRC FELLOWS

DR RACHAEL BROOKS
PQIP

I am a Wessex trainee, now at UCLH as a PQIP fellow. Clinically, I enjoy obstetrics, paediatrics and, of course, perioperative medicine. My passion is medical education, organising a final FRCA course being my latest focus. Outside of anaesthesia, I will be found on the south coast sailing, cycling and generally being outdoors!

DR SAM NAVA
SNAP-3

I live and work in Bath with my wife and very busy toddler! I am interested in obstetric anaesthesia, perioperative medicine, and patient experience. I look forward to the challenges of the HSRC fellowship and developing a wider academic skill set. I dabble in cricket, skiing and occasional bird watching!

DR EE-NENG LOH
NELA

Hello everyone. My name is Ee-Neng Loh, and I am an anaesthetic trainee at the Central London School of Anaesthesia. Thrilled to be joining HSRC as a NELA fellow, I am looking forward to gaining a different experience from my time out of training. Outside work, I enjoy exploring new places and a sweat session of pilates.

DR AARON LAVIN
QUALITY IMPROVEMENT
WORKING GROUP

I am excited to be starting as the research fellow in quality improvement, particularly since working on NAP-7 and SuperSNAP-1 recently in Exeter. I live in Devon and like to make the most of the local scenery, whether on my bike or meeting up with family and friends.

DR NICOLA KELLY
NELA

Having completed ACCS Anaesthetics in London, I spent a fellowship year in Uganda through an RCoA Global Partnership project. I'm excited to join the NELA project team and return to UK practice in the North East, where on my weekends off I'll be making the most of the proximity to the Moors, Peaks, Dales, Pennines and Lake District national parks.

DR MIKE ARGENT
PQIP

Having recently completed dual training in Wales, this HSRC post is the perfect opportunity to increase my breadth of experience of research and management in health services within the perioperative medicine domain. Conforming to stereotypes, I am a keen yet very ordinary runner and cyclist and have set my sights on stepping up for a marathon.
