

Vacancy: NIAA Academic Training Lead

We are currently inviting applications for the position of Academic Training Lead for the NIAA.

This is a 3-year fixed term appointment to promote and develop training in research for trainees in anaesthesia, perioperative medicine and pain (APOMP).

The NIAA is a partnership body, made up of four founding partners, the Association of Anaesthetists, the Royal College of Anaesthetists (RCoA), the British Journal of Anaesthesia (BJA) and the journal Anaesthesia and funding partner organisations (specialist societies).

The post holder will work closely with the two Trainee Representatives on the NIAA Research Council, provide support on the annual NIAA Introduction to Academic Anaesthesia Day, oversee the development of the RCoA curriculum for training in research, alongside the RCoA Training Committee and the NIAA Board. They will also support the further development of trainee research networks and work with relevant stakeholders to promote and increase opportunities for trainees.

There is no direct remuneration for this role, however all reasonable expenses will be covered by the RCoA.

Those who are interested are strongly encouraged to discuss the role with current post holder Prof Dan Martin, who can be contacted by email (info@niaa.org.uk)

Further information about the NIAA is available here, and the job description and person specification are available here.

To apply please submit your application to info@niaa.org.uk:

- Covering letter indicating clearly why you want the role and how your skills and experience meet the requirements of the post as set out in the Job Description and Person Specification.
- CV
- Letter of support from employer

Closing date for applications: 5pm, Monday 13 May 2024

Interviews will be held on: date TBC

The role will formally commence in July 2024
